

This sometimes feels like a heavy burden. But then I remember the responsibility is not mine. It belongs to God who uses me as a vessel each day. With His guidance and His Word I have been able to speak to people who are facing hardships that I have never faced. I have been able to comfort people in situations I have never gone through. God has been present in every situation, allowing me to be silent when necessary and speak words of wisdom when relevant. I have learnt the power in saying 'I don't know' and seen the change in someone by just showing up.

This job is not for everyone. I have cried more than a few times in my six months here due to the injustice that our wonderful clients face on a daily basis, however it is a complete and utter privilege to be here. I love what I do and I love that we have an army of wonderful souls praying for us and our work each and every day.

Thank you readers. You are truly a blessing.

An update from our Chaplain

I have now been the Chaplain at GMCC for six months. It has been six months of amazing learning experiences, sadness and joy.

Before starting at GMCC I volunteered for a charity that helped train ex-offenders who then moved on to get jobs and become functioning members of society.

This had given me a good basis on which to start here.

However this role is so much more than volunteering. This role has forced me to get out of my comfort zone; to attend meetings and planning sessions with people twice my age who have been in the prison and social justice industries for years. I go into prisons alone representing GMCC, where my youth is constantly pointed out. And most importantly I have a group of ex-offenders who ask me for advice, guidance and prayer on a regular basis.
